

The review on the teaching training of UWTSD

Liu Wenhui

The one-month study in the University of Wales Trinity Saint David was over soon, This learning experience has left me a deep impression.

The following learning content left a deep impression on me:

Leadership and management in education:

Leadership and management in education are dynamic and multifaceted roles that significantly impact the quality of teaching, learning, and overall educational experiences. Effective educational leaders inspire and guide their institutions toward positive change, while skilled managers ensure the smooth operation of daily activities. By fostering a shared vision, embracing innovation, and prioritizing ethical considerations, educational leaders and managers contribute to the growth and success of educational institutions. Their ability to navigate challenges, engage stakeholders, and create a supportive environment is pivotal in shaping the future of education and nurturing the development of generations to come. Studying the concept of leadership and management in education has been an enlightening experience. This reflective essay aims to highlight the key insights I have gained from exploring this topic and how it has broadened my understanding of effective educational practices.

Research Methods for Education:

Studying research methods for education has been an enlightening journey, providing me with valuable insights into the process of conducting meaningful and impactful educational research. This reflective essay aims to highlight the key takeaways from my exploration of this topic and how it has enhanced my understanding of conducting research in the field of education. Research methods in education are vital tools for generating evidence-based insights that inform educational practice and policy. Through rigorous investigation, researchers in education contribute to the improvement of teaching methods, curriculum design, and the overall educational experience. These methodologies aid educators, administrators, policymakers, and other stakeholders in making informed decisions that promote positive learning outcomes and the continuous enhancement of educational systems.

It was a great pleasure to spend time with such excellent teachers, I would like to thank every teacher for their help and support during my study. I hope I can still have the opportunity to participate in the training program next time to broaden my horizon and improve myself.
